My dear Father

I am delighted to receive your birthday gift. It is simply superb. Though I have received many gifts, none can equal the one that you have sent.

The electronic dictionary which you have sent me has more than one lakh words. Besides, it has the facility to learn the correct pronunciation of words. It has a number of interesting grammar and vocabulary games which can help a student.

It is really very useful. It will help me all through my education and even afterwards. I know you are busy in New York but you must soon find time to visit us.

Yours affectionately

Sapna

Sub: dirty condition of our school toilets

Sir

It is to bring to your kind notice that the school-toilets are very dirty. They stink and we have to use them because there is no alternative. The taps are constantly leaking. It's difficult to stand there at all. I wish you could yourself see their condition.

In fact their bad condition forces many students to relieve themselves at the boundary walls and other such places. The sweepers never seem to clean them. There are dirty remarks written all around in the toilet walls. Kindly get the toilets cleaned and painted afresh to give them a good look.

They do not only provide essential oxygen but also add to the scenic beauty around us. Trees and plants provide us with fresh air to breathe in and help in controlling the atmospheric pollution. In summer, when the sun starts scorching us, trees and plants provide us shade and protect us from its heat. During rainy season, the trees prevent soil erosion. In the cold winter, trees and plants give us food and warmth by way of burning fuel and firewood for cooking purposes. Trees also provide us with essential herbs and fruits. Thus, trees are indispensable for a healthy life of everyone.

8	Suggested Value Points: No one really knows who discovered tea, many legends associated with the origin of tea, An Indian legend about Bodhidharma, felt sleepy during meditations, cut eyelids and tea plants grew out of the eyelids, another legend about a Chinese emperor, drank water after a boil, few leaves fell into the water and they were tea leaves. Model Answer : Rajvir tells Pranjol that no one really knows who discovered tea. There are many legends associated with the origin of tea. An Indian legend goes like this. Once there was a Buddhist ascetic Bodhidharma. He used to feel sleepy during meditations. So he cut off his eyelids. Ten tea plants grew out of the eyelids. When the leaves of these plants were put in hot water and drunk, these banished sleep. It is said that they were tea leaves. Another legend lies like this that a king in China was in the habit of drinking water after boiling it. One day, a few leaves of the twigs burning under the pot fell into the water. As a result, the boiled water got a delicious flavour. It is said they were tea leaves. Thus the chapter shows an Indian legend and a Chinese legend associated with the origin of tea. Or Suggested Value Points: Natalya: unmarried and 25 years old heroine of the play, father calls her a love sick cat, quarrels over the authority of Oxen Meadows and the better breed of their pet dogs, when comes to know about the proposal Lomov is called back, arguments starts before the proposal, father puts her hand in the hands of Lomov, announces that they are engaged but she again starts quarrelling with him, an interesting but materialistic character Model Answer :	6 Marks

	Natalya is the heroine of the play 'The Proposal'. She is 25 years old. She is still unmarried. It causes a great worry to her father. Natalya wishes that somebody should love her and propose to her. Her father calls her 'a love-sick cat'. She is quarrelsome by nature. She quarrels with Lomov over the authority of Oxen Meadows and the better breed of their pet dogs. When she comes to know that he had come to propose to her, she starts crying. Lomov is called back once again and argument starts before proposing. Her father does not want to lose this opportunity. He at one puts Natalya's hand in the hands of Lomov. Then he announces that they are engaged to each other. Natalya becomes very happy. But she again starts quarrelling with him. Thus we can say that Natalya is an interesting but materialistic character.

He was fifty years old and unmarried. But he was not completely honest. He loved to buy rare, latest and expensive books. He raised money to buy these books by breaking one safe every year. His latest target was the safe at Shotover Grange. He made thorough preparation for his venture. But when he entered the room, his hay fever made him sneeze. It brought a young lady to him. She posed to be the mistress of the house. She threatened to hand him over to police. She told him that she would let him go free if he opened	6 Marks the safe for her. She wanted to wear the jewellery for a dinner party that evening. She said that she had forgotten the code number to open the safe. Horace was scared. So he opened the safe but without wearing gloves in hurry. He left his finger prints all over that led to his arrest.

Thus the real culprit in the story was the lady in red. She had befooled, cheated and trapped Horace Danby.

Suggested Value Points :

Invited to a party, Matilda borrowed a necklace of diamonds from Mme. Forestier, had a great sense of victory at the ball, lost the necklace and failed to find it, raised a loan of 18000 francs, after 10 years of hard work able to pay off the debt, the diamond necklace was artificial, the necklace changed their life completely.

Model Answer :

Matilda was a very beautiful and attractive woman. One evening, her husband told her that they were invited to a party at the residence of the Minister of Public Instruction. She went to her friend Mme. Forestier's house. She borrowed a necklace of diamonds from her to wear at the party. Everybody praised her at the ball. All the officers at the party wanted to dance with her. She had a great sense of victory. But she lost the necklace. She and her husband made all efforts to find it, but in vain. Now they needed 36000 francs to purchase a diamond necklace and return it to Mme. Forestier. But they had only 18000 francs with them. So Loisel raised a loan of 18000 francs. They shifted to a small room. They dismissed their maid. Matilda did all her household works herself. Mr Loisel did extra work in the evenings. After ten years of hard work, they were able to pay off their debt. But now Matilda had become an ordinary woman of a poor house. In the end, she came to know that the diamond necklace was artificial. It was not even worth 500 francs in reality. Thus the necklace changed their life completely.
